LIMESTONE FOR LAWRENCE
COUNTY SOILS

By L. L. Hunt, County Agent.

There are two ways of preparing limestone rock for adding to our soils. The limestone can be burnt and the caustic lime so produced may be broken up to sufficient fineness, or the limestone may be finely ground so as to thoroughly mix with the soil. A ton of the raw rock lime ground sufficiently fine for soil purposes may be purchased from the big quarries at Joplin and Carthage for around $2.50 per ton. In carload lots considering freight charges it would cost around $3.00 per ton delivered. Now if we were to burn a ton of this stone it would lose about two fifths of its weight, but its power to correct soil acidity would not be increased or decreased. However the cost would be about double. It could be easier handled because of less bulk, but the extra saving in labor would not over-balance the saving in price. Considering only the economic reasons the finely ground limestone is the most desirable to use. Ground limestone for the best results should be ground as fine as the ordinary corn meal. The standard grade of limestone will pass through an 8 or 10 mesh screen. The coarser ground stone is desirable in certain cases but it works slower and is worth less.

The amount of lime to use depends on the need of the soil for lime. Some of our bottom land shows no acidity while a few need at least one and one-half tons per acre. Upland soils that have been tested in Lawrence county show acid without exception. Variations in soil makes it impossible to give any rule that will apply in all cases. However the best results cannot be expected on most of Lawrence county soils with applications of less than a ton to the acre. It is the common practice to make the first application heavy enough to sweeten the soil, and then follow every four or six years after with a small application to keep the soil sweet. Unfortunately, of all the soil constituents, limestone is one of the most easily lost by the leaching action of water.

The fall or early winter season is usually the best time to apply lime as the roads are more often in good condition and the fields not often very wet. It should be applied on the plowed ground and then worked into the surface 3 to 5 inches of soil with a disk or harrow. The dressing is not advisable except in the case of permanent meadows or pastures. In using lime preparatory to wheat and clover the land should be plowed and leveled before scattering the lime, the working in of the lime may serve as the final preparation of the seed bed.

In the issues of this paper for the coming two weeks the "Results Obtained from Limestone" and the "Possibility of grinding Lawrence County Limestone" will be discussed.
